A Medical Library on a New Plan-A Novel Electric Boad

St. Louis. Ang. s.—Librarians in other cities would stare with eavy could sleep see the list of books which the public ilbrary will carry into its new quarters in the Polytechnic building, when it is finished. When the new ilbrary was first pro-When the new library was first pro-When the new library was first pro-posed, Librarian Fred M. Granden had an idea by which he thought he could get for the library the most complete medical library in the country. He offered all the medical societies of the city the privileges of the library for their members on condition that they turned over to him all their books to go into the cases as the property of the library. Each of the societies had an immense number of ralently bester which the property bad an immense number the societies had an immense number of valuable books, which were poorly of valuable books, which were poorly cared for, and they jumped at this chance, as Mr. Crunden thought they would Medical books are very costly. duplicated for a hundred thousand

The proposed belt line around Forest Park is userling with favor. The board of public improvements has to decide whether or not it shall be, and all of the members of the body want it.
The only question is as to the company that shall have the franchise. It is suggestee to dispose of that obstacle;
that the right to build the line be sold by the city at auction. It would bring several hundred thousand dollars, no doubt. There are plenty of electric roads to the park, but it is so big, and so much of it has purposely been left as mature made it, that most of the people who go out there never see one third of it and beave it after a short walk through the accessible parts of it with a very wrong idea of its proportions. At present, only those who
